Acknowledgments

This is the eleventh of a series of new-style county histories which will include all of the 102 counties in Illinois and, ultimately, all of the 3,103 counties in the United States. The project, specializing in aerial photographs of cities, towns, villages and homesteads, is known as The American Aerial County History Series.

In the preparation of this work on Brown County, Illinois, the author and publisher hereby acknowledge their gratitude, for advice and assistance generously given them, to Mr. Joseph C. Wolf and Mrs. Ellen Chase of the Newberry Library, Chicago; to Mr. Herbert H. Hewitt, Mrs. Roberta Sutton and Miss Winifred Baum, all of the Chicago Public Library, Chicago; and to various librarians, public officials, business executives and private citizens of the city of Mount Sterling and the county of Brown, Illinois. The author also wishes to express special acknowledgment to his wife, Marion Neville Drury, for research, editorial and proof-reading assistance.

Grateful appreciation is also shown here to officials of the Bureau of Public Roads of the U.S. Department of Commerce and to officials of the Department of Public Works & Planning of the State of Illinois (in particular to those in charge of that department's Bureau of Research and Planning in the Highway Department), for permission to use the Brown County maps included in this book.

Sources used by the author in preparing this book were: Inventory of the County Archives of Illinois, No. 5, Brown County (the Historical Records Survey, Chicago, 1938); Illinois: A Descriptive and Historical Guide, The American Guide Series (A.C. ## The Story of Brown County, Illinois

Especially noted in the past for its potters' ware, building stone and fire clay, Brown County, in the west central part of Illinois, is today one of the leading agricultural counties of the great Grain Belt in that sector of the Prairie State. It is also of interest for its historic courthouse at Mount Sterling, now almost ninety years old, and for its Siloan Springs State Park, a natural recreation area of 2,046 acres maintained by the State of Illinois.

Located on the Illinois River about half way between the cities of Springfield and Quincy, Brown County is a fertile farming region of 397 square miles. In 1950 it had a population of 7,132. The county is bounded on the north and northeast by Schuyler County, on the south by Pike County, on the west by Adams County, and on the east by the Illinois River.

Under Three Flags

First white men to view the future site of Brown County were, of course, the French explorers, Father Marquette and Louis Jolliet. After having discovered the Upper Mississippi River in 1673, they were returning to Montreal by way of the Illinois River when they passed land that was in aftertimes to become Brown County. With their exploration of this vast wilderness region of interior America, Marquette and Jolliet claimed it for their King and thus it became New France.

One hundred years later, after the close of the French and Indian Wars, this great domain came into the possession of the British. But by that time the thirteen colonies on the Atlantic seaboard had been firmly established. Then came the American Revolution of 1775-1783. After George Rogers Clark and his handful of backwoodsmen captured Vincennes and several other key British posts in Indiana and Illinois, the new American flag was for the first time raised over what is now Illinois and the eastern half of the Midwest.

There followed the formation of the Northwest Territory, out of which later were carved the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and part of Minnesota. When the Territory of Illinois was created in 1809, future Brown County was part of St. Clair County, then in 1812 it became part of Madison County. Seven years after Illinois was admitted to statehood (1818), what is now Brown County was attached to newly-organized Schuyler County, and here it remained until Brown County was created in 1839.

First Settlers

Although a squatter named Sheppard is known to have arrived in the region of future Brown County as early as 1823, he did not become a permanent settler. After building a pole cabin on the bluffs of Camp Creek, not far from the Illinois River in what is now Versailles Township, Sheppard evidently did not remain here for very long. For when, a year later, there came to the same region Cornelius Vandeventer and his three sons, they found Sheppard's cabin deserted and partially burned.

Unlike Sheppard, Vandeventer and his sons remained in the region and thus became the first permanent settlers of what is now Brown County. They built a log cabin, staked out a farm, and soon had brought other settlers to the area. At a later date, Cornelius Vandeventer became the first justice of the peace and postmaster of the community that grew up about his early cabin.

When Schuyler County was created in 1825, with Rushville as county seat, the southern portion of it embraced what is now Brown County. As more and more settlers built cabins in this southern portion, and as such new villages in the region as Mount Sterling and Ripley began to grow in influence, a movement was started to have Schuyler's county seat removed to Ripley, which was more centrally located in the county than Rushville. When this movement failed, the settlers of the region began to talk of forming a new county.

Mount Sterling Founded

It was in 1830 that Robert Curry arrived at the future site of Mount Sterling, and, after being favorably impressed with a mound located there and the terrain surrounding it, decided to settle on the spot and possibly plat a town on it. He built a home on the mound and soon was laying plans for the establishment of a village. Subsequently, he named the village after the mound on which he had settled and after the "sterling" quality of the soil surrounding it. When Brown County was created in 1839, Curry's village was designated county seat --- a title it has retained to the present day.

Pottery-Making Village

In addition to Mount Sterling, another early community of Cass County is Ripley, located near Crooked Creek and which today has a population of 177. This village was established in the 1830's, before Cass County was formed, and for several decades afterwards was widely known for its fine pottery ware. At the peak of its fame it had eighteen potteries in operation, which employed most of the male population of the village. No evidence of these kilns may be found in Ripley today.

Brown County Organized

After enough settlers, many of whom had come to the region by crossing the Illinois River at Thomas Beard's ferry (now Beardstown), had built homes in the southern portion of Schuyler County, the demands for the formation of a new county here had grown so loud that action was finally taken.

When the proper petitions were filed, the Illinois state legislature enacted a law for the creation of a new county, to be named after General Jacob Brown, and this was signed by Governor Thomas Carlin on February 1, 1839. Thus was Brown County born out of the southern half of Schuyler County.

As was the custom of the time, three commissioners from outside the new county were appointed by the state legislature to select a county seat for Brown. They chose Mount Sterling, in accordance with the wishes of most residents. At a later date, Robert Curry, founder of Mount Sterling, loaned the new county $50 to buy its first record books.

General Jacob J. Brown

The new county was named after Jacob Jennings Brown, an outstanding American general in the war of 1812. Soon after the American Revolution, Brown purchased several thousand acres of land on the shore of Lake Ontario, near Sackets Harbor, New York, and there founded the town of Brownville. In the War of 1812 he commanded 900 soldiers who defeated the British at Sackets Harbor. Later, as a major general, Brown defeated the British again, this time at the Battle of Lundy's Lane, near Lake Ontario. From 1821 until his death in 1828 (before Brown County, in Illinois, was established), Brown was general-in-chief of the United States Army.

First Election

At Brown County's first election, held in May, 1839, Thomas Brockman, Joseph Robinson and Joseph Stoner were elected county commissioners, and Jacob Vandeventer was chosen county clerk. Then, on July 10, the county's probate court held its first session, with Daniel R. Lucas as probate justice of the peace. It was not until the following year that the circuit court held its first session; this took place in the Presbyterian Church at Mount Sterling and was presided over by Judge Peter Lott of the First Judicial Circuit (with James M. Burt serving as clerk of the court).

First Courthouse

When Brown County was first organized, it occupied a temporary seat of justice in Mount Sterling. In the meantime, plans were formulated for the construction of a permanent courthouse; one that would be suitable and spacious enough for the business of the county and the keeping of records.

This building was completed in 1844. It was of brick construction and was erected at a cost of $11,000. After serving the county for more than twenty years, this first courthouse became outmoded and was replaced by Brown County's second courthouse.

Second Courthouse

When Brown County's second courthouse was completed in 1868, it was widely admired for its architecture. The building, a two-story edifice of brick construction designed in the Georgian style, was erected at a cost of $21,299. It is still standing today and has become something of an historical and architectural landmark in Illinois. Fronted by a portico of four Doric columns and surmounted by an ornamental cupola, Brown County's Courthouse in Mount Sterling has the appearance of an early New England church or town hall. As such, it forms an interesting contrast to many of the more modern buildings around it.

Siloam Springs State Park

In the southwest portion of Brown County today there is located an attraction that brings hundreds of visitors to the county each year. This is Siloam Springs State Park. Situated just north of State 104, which connects Springfield with Quincy, this park is maintained by the State of Illinois and consists of more than 2,000 acres of natural woodland and rolling countryside. Near it is the village of Benville, which in 1950 had a population of 38.

Brown County Today

On the basis of the latest United States census figures, Brown County in 1950 had a total population of 7,132 --- which placed it 2,634th on population rank among the 3,103 counties of the United States. Its principal city, Mount Sterling, had a population of 2,246. Occupying a land area of 307 square miles, the county's density of population was 23 persons per square mile.

Of the county's total population, 3,618 were classified as rural farm dwellers and 3,514 as rural non-farm residents. There were 688 babies under five years of age in the county in 1950, and 1,120 persons sixty-five years old and over; the median age of the total population was given as 35.7 years. At that time there were 4,678 potential voters in the county.

Under the heading of vital statistics, 127 babies were born that year, 107 deaths occurred (including two infants), and 59 marriages were performed. The number of families (two or more persons related by marriage or blood) was 2,120, and the median income of all of these families was $2,194. Of the county's total of 2,590 who were employed, 48.8 per cent were engaged in agricultural pursuits and 5.9 per cent in manufacturing (practically all of which is done in Mount Sterling). There were 2,496 dwelling units, and 1,352 of these were classified as non-farm units. The median value of the latter was given as $4,450. More than 94 per cent of all dwelling units in the county had radios.

When the U.S. Business census was last taken in 1948, Brown County had 97 retail stores whose total sales amounted to $6,364,000. The largest group in this category were food stores, which numbered 20 and which grossed $1,065,000 in sales. In 1947 the county had 5 manufacturing establishments, which produced goods and articles in the amount of $92,000.

Of the county's total of 957 farms (in 1950), 865 were classified as commercial farms. The average value of land and buildings per farm for all farms was placed at $17,347. In 1949, the value of all farm products sold was $4,913,000. Expenditures that same year were $713,000 for feed (livestock and poultry), and $199,000 for hired labor.

CITY of MOUNT STERLING

Situated in the geographical center of Brown County, Mount Sterling is that county's seat of justice and principal city. In 1950 it had a total population of 2,246. The city is served by the Wabash Railroad and by US 24 and State 99. Mount Sterling is the oldest community in Brown County. It was founded in 1830 by Robert Curry, an early settler. At that time Brown County was not yet in existence.

After being favorably impressed with a mound there, and with the terrain surrounding it, Robert Curry decided to settle on the site of future Mount Sterling. He built a home on the mound and began formulating plans for the establishment of a village. He later named his village after the mound on which his home stood and after the "sterling" quality of the soil around it. When Brown County was created in 1839, Mount Sterling was designated county seat --- a title it has retained to the present day.

Points of Constitutional Law.

Congress must meet at least once a year.
 Congress may admit as many new states as desired.
 One State cannot undo the act of another.
 By the Constitution every citizen is guaranteed a speedy trial by jury.
 Congress cannot pass a law to punish for a crime already committed.
 A person who commits a felony in one State cannot find refuge in another.
 Treaties with foreign powers are made by the President and ratified by the Senate.
 The territories each have a delegate to Congress who is allowed the privilege of debate, but not the right to vote.
 The Vice-President, who ex-officio presides over the Senate has no vote in that body except in case a tie ballot.
 If the President holds a bill longer than ten days while Congress is in session it becomes a law without his signature.
 An act of Congress cannot become a law over the President's veto except on a two-thirds vote of both houses.
 The House of Representatives may impeach the President for any crime, but the Senate has the sole power to try all impeachments.
 Amendments to the Constitution of the United States require a two-third vote of each House of Congress, and must be ratified by at least three-fourths of the States.
 The President of the United States must be at least 35 years of age; a Senator, 30; a Congressman, 25; The President must have been a resident of the United States fourteen years.
 A naturalized citizen is not eligible to the office of President of the United States. A male child born in a foreign land to American parents has an equal chance to become the President with one born on American soil.
 The United States shall guarantee to every State a Republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion, and on application of the Legislature or of the Executive (when the Legislature cannot be convened), against domestic trouble.
